Background:

Point 2.1.2 of the Education and Student Strategy states:

“Refine and embed our Graduate Attributes and enable our students to demonstrate their achievements as part of both their programme outcomes and wider co-curricular activities.”

College set up a working group to tackle this objective, with the aim to: design and implement a scheme which will enable all Imperial students to demonstrate the skills and experience gained through co-curricular and extra-curricular activities.

This group has decided that they want an “Imperial Award” that recognises students who show particular attributes through extracurricular activities. Activities can include volunteering, taking part in student enterprise, a club/society officer, being a rep (of course!) etc...

Now the discussion will centre on which attributes we want to be recognised. Do we want the standard: “works well in a team”, “can speak clearly in public” blah blah, or do we want more interesting stuff like having a global view of things, flexibility etc.

This award will probably involve Imperial Plus and will appear on the transcript if students complete it.

Discussion Points:

- What attributes do you think should be a part of this award?
